

The Barren touched in this holy chace,
Shake off their sterile curse.

Ant. I shall remember,

When Caesar sayes, Do this; it is perform'd.

Cas. Set on, and leaue no Ceremony out.

Sooths. Caesar.

Cas. Ha? Who calles?

Cas. Bid euery noyse be still: peace yet againe,

Cas. Who is it in the presse, that calles on me?

I heare a Tongue shriller then all the Musicke

Cry. Caesar: Speake, Caesar is turn'd to heare.

Sooths. Beware the Ides of March.

Cas. What man is that?

Br. A Sooth-sayer bids you beware the Ides of March

Cas. Set him before me, let me see his face.

Cassi. Fellow, come from the throng, look vpon Caesar.

Cas. What sayst thou to me now? Speak once againe.

Sooths. Beware the Ides of March.

Cas. He is a Dreamer, let vs leaue him: Passe.

Sennet. Exeunt. Marcellus Brut. & Cassi.

Cassi. Will you go see the order of the course?

Brut. Not I.

Cassi. I pray you do.

Brut. I am not Gamefom: I do lacke some part

Of that quicke Spirit that is in Antony:

Let me not hinder Cassius your desires;

Ile leaue you.

Cassi. Brutus, I do obserue you now of late:

I haue not from your eyes, that gentleness

And shew of Loue, as I was wont to haue:

You beare too stubborne, and too strange a hand

Ouer your Friend, that loues you.

Brut. Cassius,

Be not decei'd: If I haue veyl'd my looke,

I turne the trouble of my Countenance

Meerely vpon my selfe. Vexed I am

Of late, with passions of some difference,

Conceptions onely proper to my selfe,

Which giue some soyle (perhaps) to my Behaviours:

But let not therefore my good Friends be greiu'd

(Among which number Cassius be you one)

Nor construe any further my neglect,

Then that poore Brutus with himselfe at warre,

Forgets the shewes of Loue to other men.

Cassi. Then Brutus, I haue much mistook your passion,

By meanes whereof, this Brest of mine hath buried

Thoughts of great value, worthy Cogitations.

Tell me good Brutus, Can you see your face?

Brutus. No Cassius:

For the eye sees not it selfe but by reflection,

By some other things.

Cassius. 'Tis iust,

And it is very much lamented Brutus,

That you haue no such Mirrors, as will turne

Your hidden worthinesse into your eye,

That you might see your shadow:

I haue heard,

Where many of the best respect in Rome,

(Except immortall Caesar) speaking of Brutus,

And groaning vnderneath this Ages yoke,

Haue wish'd, that Noble Brutus had his eyes:

Brut. Into what dangers, would you

Leade me Cassius?

That you would haue me seeke into my selfe,

For that which is not in me?

Cas. Therefore good Brutus, be prepar'd to heare:

And since you know, you cannot see your selfe
So well as by Reflection; I your Glasse,
Will modestly discouer to your selfe
That of your selfe, which you yet know not of,
And be not iealous on me, gentle Brutus:
Were I a common Laughter, or did vse
To stale with ordinary Oathes my loue
To euery new Protester: if you know,
That I do fawne on men, and hugge them hard,
And after scandall them: Or if you know,
That I professe my selfe in Banqueting
To all the Rout, then hold me dangerous.

Flourish, and Shout.

Brut. What meanes this Showting?

I do feare, the People choose Caesar

For their King.

Cassi. I, do you feare it?

Then must I thinke you would not haue it so,

Brut. I would not Cassius, yet I loue him well:

But wherefore do you hold me heere so long?

What is it, that you would impart to me?

If it be ought toward the generall good,

Set Honor in one eye, and Death in other,

And I will looke on both indifferently:

For let the Gods so speed mee, as I loue

The name of Honor, more then I feare death.

Cassi. I know that vertue to be in you Brutus,

As well as I do know your outward fauour,

Well, Honor is the subiect of my Story:

I cannot tell, what you and other men

Thinke of this life: But for my single selfe,

I had as lief not be, as liue to be

In awe of such a Thing, as I my selfe.

I was borne free as Caesar, so were you,

We both haue fed as well, and we can both

Endure the Winters cold, as well as hee.

For once, vpon a Rawe and Gustie day,

The troubled Tyber, chafing with her Shores,

Caesar saide to me, Dar'it thou Cassius now

Leape in with me into this angry Flood,

And swim to yonder Point? Vpon the word,

Accoutred as I was, I plunged in,

And bad him follow: so indeede he did.

The Torrent roar'd, and we did buffet it

With lusty Sinewes, throwing it aside,

And stemming it with hearts of Contronerie.

But ere we could arriue the Point propos'd,

Caesar cride, Helpe me Cassius, or I sinke.

I (as Aeneas, our great Ancestor,

Did from the Flames of Troy, vpon his shoulder

The old Anchises beare) so, from the waues of Tyber

Did I the tyred Caesar: And this Man,

Is now become a God, and Cassius is

A wretched Creature, and must bend his body,

If Caesar carelesly but nod on him.

He had a Feauer when he was in Spaine,

And when the Fit was on him, I did marke

How he did shake: 'Tis true, this God did shake,

His Coward lippes did from their colour flye,

And that same Eye, whose bend doth awe the World,

Did loose his Lustre: I did heare him grone:

I, and that Tongue of his, that bad the Romans

Marke him, and write his Speeches in their Bookes,

Alas, it cride, Giue me some drinke Titinius;

As a sicke Girle: Ye Gods, it doth amaze me,
A man of such a feeble temper should
So get the start of the Maiesticke world,
And beare the Palme alone.

Shout.

Flourish.

Brut. Another generall shout?

I do beleue, that these applauses are

For some new Honors, that are heap'd on Caesar.

Cassi. Why man, he doth bestride the narrow world

Like a Colossus, and we petty men

Walke vnder his huge legges, and peepe about

To finde our selues dishonourable Graues.

Men at sometime, are Masters of their Fates.

The fault (deere Brutus) is not in our Starres,

But in our Selues, that we are vnderlings.

Brutus and Caesar: What should be in that Caesar?

Why should that name be founded more then yours?

Write them together: Yours, is as faire a Name:

Sound them, it doth become the mouth as well:

Weight them, it is as heavy: Coniure with 'em,

Brutus will start a Spirit as loone as Caesar,

Now in the names of all the Gods at once,

Vpon what meate doth this our Caesar feede,

That he is growne so great? Age, thou art sham'd.

Rome, thou hast lost the breed of Noble Bloods,

When went there by an Age, since the great Flood,

But it was fan'd with more then with one man?

When could they say (till now) that talk'd of Rome,

That her wide Walkes incompass but one man?

Now is it Rome indeed, and Rome enough

When there is in it but one onely man.

O! you and I, haue heard our Fathers say,

There was a Brutus once, that would haue brook'd

The eternall Duell to keepe his State in Rome,

As easily as a King.

Brut. That you do loue me, I am nothing iealous:

What you would worke me too, I haue some ayme:

How I haue thought of this, and of these times

I shall recount heereafter. For this present,

I would not so (with loue I might intreat you)

Be any further mood'd: What you haue said,

I will consider: what you haue to say

I will with patience heare, and finde a time

Both meete to heare, and answer such high things.

Till then, my Noble Friend, cheere vpon this:

Brutus had rather be a Villager,

Then to repute himselfe a Sonne of Rome

Vnder these hard Conditions, as this time

Is like to lay vpon vs.

Cassi. I am glad that my weake words

Haue stricke but thus much shew of fire from Brutus.

Enter Caesar and his Traine.

Brut. The Games are done,

And Caesar is returning.

Cassi. As they passe by,

Plucke Caesar by the Sleue,

And he will (after his sower fashion) tell you

What hath proceeded worthy note to day.

Brut. I will do so: but looke you Cassius,

The angry spot doth glow on Caesar's brow,

And all the rest, look like a chidden Traine;

Calphurnia's Cheeke is pale, and Cicero

Lookes with such Ferret, and such fiery eyes

As we haue seene him in the Capitoll

Being crost in Conference

Cassi. Caesar will tell v
